save its employees the time and trouble of going to the library daily to select books to take home for the evenings or Sunday reading, crates of assorted works of the best authors are wheeled over to the factory itself and there set up, that the people may make their selections.

And the thoughtfulness and care of the girls does not stop even at the factory door. For their greater convenience an arrangement has been made with the trolley company to have a sufficient number of cars drawn up in front of the factory in the evening at 5:20 when the girls are dismissed to enable each one of them to get a good sent to ride comfortably to her home and, above all, to get away from the vicinity of the factory before the exodus of the men employees begins. On Saturday afternoon every girl in the employment of the factory has a full half-holiday with full pay for a full day's work. It is the idea of the octopus that she may have some little shopping to do, that Saturday evening is not a pleasant time for her to be abroad in the streets and that she can ill afford to take an afternoon off at her own expense. So the octopus bears the expense for her. BUMORS AS TO THE PUTURE.

RUMORS AS TO THE PUTURE.

In saying all this the present tense has been used. It should be the past. It's "is" no longer; it's "was." And the question which is coming home every day with more and more weight to the people who have enjoyed these very remarkable privileges is whether it is to be a case of "was." for all time. Some dim suspicion is beginning to filter its way through certain heads that there is such a possibility as killing geese that lay golden eggs. A question which a great number of the late employees of the company would be very glad to have answered just now is whether their particular goose is dead. There have been rather alarming rumors current to the effect that the fow is defunct. The question is seriously presenting itself as to whether even the joys of triumphant unionism are an offset complete in every detail to the loss of this bird.

There has been a very general desirelatent, but none the less earnest—on the part of his late beneficiaries to hear from Mr. Patterson on this subject. Mr. Patterson has been beset with inquiries, oral, written, telegraphic and telephonic, upon this subject by the world at large. To all of these he has replied with one set phrase. I don't know." And it is the pretty general conviction that when he says he does not know what the company is going to do about the present situation, he says exactly what he means. There have been all sorts of fantastic rumors, based upon nothing whatever, to the effect that he was going to do this, that and the other. It has been said he was going to rip out the shrubbery and flower beds and let the lawns grow up to rank grass and weeds, and that he was going to to rank grass and each each of the employees. It has been said that he was going to lock and boit and bar the doors of all that has been put into it at so much expense for the mere comfort and pleasure of the employees. It has been said that he was going to lock and boit and bar the doors of all the that has been put into it at so much expe

Where Has My Energy Gone?

"I am all run down and played out. Nothing I take seems to do me any good. My food don't taste good and I have no desire for it. I don't sleep well and I get up every morning listless and weary."

This story is told in every physician's office in the country from one to twenty times a day by as many people. These same people not only tell this story to their physician, but they tell it to their friends and to Johann Hoff's Malt Extract is the thing such people haven't tried. If they had they would be different people, for nothing in the world changes such a condition so quickly as this great food assimilator which has come to us from the old world. Taken with meals it becomes the perfect food digester and within a very few days the sufferer begins to brighten up. His food is doing him good. It is being assimilated and digested. The stomach has received the required aid and flesh and blood and nerve and energy show it.

It is an unmixed joy to hear one of these men or women talk about their condition after they have used Johann Hoff's Malt Extract for a few days. From the most listless they have become the most enthusiastic and they want every one to know about it.

Energy is capital. It is good nature. It is usefulness. The halfstarved man or woman cannot be expected to be energetic. Get the benefit of your food and nature does the rest. Johann Hoff's Malt Extract helps nature by aiding the stomach. If you are played out and discouraged try this delicious tonic a few times with your meals.

COL. JOE'S BUNGHOLE COMMON. A Deal in Stocks Brings a Dinner to Four Vic tims of a Joker. When Col. Joe of Parlor City boarded the train for New York one morning last week he settled himself down in a comfortable plush seat in the parlor car, and allowed himself to indulge in that feeling of self-satisfaction that only comes to a man who has just done onel had done any business, for with all the pride of blue blood and spotless ancestry, his sensitive mind revolts at anything so vulgar as trade. At the same time the Colonel is not averse to a little stock speculation, and there is nothing he likes to discuss so much as his own acuteness in matters of this kind. When the Colonel makes a winning everybody in Parlor City is apt to know about it, and the the listener with the idea that it was only brought about by extraordinary cunning on the part of the Colonel. Despite these little peculiarities, however, the Colonel ranks among the good fellows of a Parlor City, and if it wasn't for a weakness for practical jokes no man would refuse to take him to his heart.

For a long time the Dobson Club boys have been trying to get back at the Colonel for a little joke of which he made them the victim a couple of years ago, but the old man has been wary, and all the carefully laid traps have proved useless. The Colonel has had many a hearty chuckle over the efforts of the boys so get even with him, and quite enjoys it when he detects the earmarks of a new plot to bring about his downfall.

Get aboard, you fellows, and make a little money

The conversation drifted to ordinary topics after awhile, and while the four played hearts, the Colonel sat back in his chair and dreamed of his winnings. The heart game broke up and as the train drew into Port Jervis, the Colonel said something about going into the dining car. He was prevailed upon to wait until they drew out of this station, and puffed away at his cigar while one of the four went out to waik up and down the platform. Pretty soon the one preturned and right after him came ishe porter calling out.

"Co.] Joe, a dispatch for Co.] Joe.

"Here, here," yelled the Colonel, springing to his feet excitedly. "Give me that telegram!"

The porter handed over the little yellow envelope and the Colonel ripped it open with a trembling hand. Here is what he read:

"Col Joe On No 8 Bunghole common reached 128 Shall hold for thirty unless you wire sell"

"Whoopee," shrieked the Colonel in delight, as he sprang to his feet and began waving the telegram in the air.

LOYALISTS CAUSE STRIFE. ILL PEBLING IN CANADA OVER PRO-POSED MONTGOMERY MONUMENT.

Quebec People Resent the Interference of Ontario Tories in the Matter of the Gift of the Massachusetts Sons of the Revolution -Laurier Declines to Interfere.

QUEBEC, Nay 23. - The United Empire Loyalists' Association of Ontario is fighting to the utmost the proposal of the Massachusetss branch of the Sons of the Revolution to erect a monument in Quebec to the memory of Gen. Richard Montgomery This association, having completely failed in its attempt to prevent the authorities of the city of Quebec from giving the necesstory is always told with a view to impressing sary consent for the erection of the monument on city property, brought its influence to bear upon the Premier of the Dominion, Sir Wilfrid Laurier, by pretending that an international issue was raised and that permission to erect such a monument should be cancelled from Ottawa.

The question was actually put to the Premier by one of the Ontario members in the House of Commons, but with no further success from the Loyalist point of view than had attended previous efforts of the kind. Sir Wilfrid replied that the Government could not interfere with what the city of Quebec did with its own property, thus proving that there was nothing in the pretence that the affair partook in any sense of the nature of an international question. Foiled in every effort so far made der for the purchase of a block of stock. He by it to prevent the erection of the monument the association has now addressed an open letter to the Massachusetts branch of the Sons of the Revolution and to Walter thousand dollars richer. But the Colonel took it seriously, and proceeded to tell of his early morning investment.

"I've been watching Bunghole common for a long time," he said, " and it's going to American prejudices in Canada This in-terference on its part in the affair of the Montgomery monument is a piece of gratui-tous impertinence, and is regarded by the majority of the people of Quebec as an majority of the people of Quebec as an impudent interference with them. If any such interference was attempted by the people of Quebec with the action of the city of Toronto for instance, in the matter of a monument, the entire province of Ontario would ring with cries of protest against French-Canadian domination.

"That deepatch from Hate was an outrageous forgery," he said to himself, and he thought for a moment of having the four arrected.

But his better judgment prevailed and as the Colonel has a horror of being made ridiculous, he decided to drop the matter. But he is waiting for a chance to get even.
